many services to the people of Cyprus...Mr. Eugene Rossides, please accept this belated honor awarded on behalf of the people and the government of Cyprus in recognition of your many years of struggle for the just cause of justice and freedom for Cyprus.”

The ambassador eloquently described Rossides as “someone who chose freely to shoulder heavy burdens of duty and responsibility for the welfare of others.” He added the award is in recognition of the many qualities Rossides exhibits, including: loyalty, faithfulness, courage, and a commitment to the public good.

In accepting the award Mr. Rossides said “I am highly honored by this award. I must stress though that our work is not done. We must redouble our efforts in support of the rule of law and until the Turkish occupation of 37.3 percent of Cyprus is ended. It is in the interest of the United States to do so.”

“We congratulate Eugene Rossides on this well-deserved honor from the Republic of Cyprus,” AHI President Nick Larigakis said. “Mr. Rossides is a true champion of the rule of law, democratic principles, and human rights. He is also an extraordinary example for future generations to emulate.”

AHI PRESENTATIONS IN ATHENS, NICOSIA FEATURES CATO SENIOR FELLOW

Doug Bandow.

AHI hosted two presentations featuring Doug Bandow, senior fellow, Cato Institute, in Nicosia, Cyprus, Nov. 28, 2016; and Athens, Greece, Dec. 1, 2016, at the Hotel Grande Bretagne. Bandow presented on the topic, “The New U.S. President: What Does This Mean for U.S. Foreign Policy in the Eastern Mediterranean?” A Q&A with the audience followed both presentations.

“What policy the incoming Trump administration will follow in the Eastern Mediterranean remains unclear, though some outlines are apparent: support for Israel, focus on the Islamic State, pressure for increased allied support,” Bandow said. “Of greatest concern are the comments of some administration designees suggesting that they believe Turkey is America's most important friend in the region. This runs against recent experience, in which Ankara has proved to be inconsistent in combating ISIS, reckless in risking war with Russia, and repressive in dismantling what democratic freedoms its people once enjoyed.”

He added, “The incoming administration needs to take a more clear-eyed view of a country that unfortunately has become more foe than friend.”

In Athens, U.S. Ambassador to Greece Geoffrey Pyatt attended the presentation and offered special greetings to the standing-room-only audience of more than 160 persons who attended. Ambassador Pyatt conveyed his gratitude to AHI for its help in strengthening U.S.-Greece relations. AHI hosted the presentation in Athens in cooperation with its AHI-Athens Chapter. AHI-Athens President George Economou provided opening remarks. Alpha-1 TV covered the presentation. The station's owner, Dimitri Contominas, also was in attendance.

In Cyprus, AHI hosted the presentation in cooperation with Press and Information Office of Cyprus.

imately 700 persons from the Tri-State Philadelphia area were in attendance to see the Philadelphia Phillies take on the Milwaukee Brewers.

Cancer survivor Gabriella Pethokoukis, of Chicago, threw out the ceremonial First Pitch. Pethokoukis played collegiate women's volleyball at Villanova University. In April 2014, she was diagnosed with Burkitt's lymphoma, a fast-growing form of non-Hodgkin's lymphoma. Today, she is cancer-free. At the 112th Annual Philadelphia Sportswriters' Association Dinner, Pethokoukis received the 2016 Most Courageous Athlete Award, the association's most prestigious award.

The popular Phillies mascot, The Phillie Phanatic, sported an Evzone costume. The Phanatic and The Olympians, a Greek dance troupe under the direction of Betty Tsarouchis, from Saint Luke's Greek Orthodox Church, Broomall, Pa., performed Greek dances upon the Phillies' dugout during the 7th Inning Stretch. The Olympians also performed pre-game at the main entrance gate. Also, Olympians' performer Kathryn Corbino had the honor of a solo performance, singing "Take Me Out to the Ballgame" at the end of the 5th Inning. A promotional video about Greece, made possible by the Press Office of the Embassy of Greece, was played on the ballpark's Jumbo-tron. Greek Heritage Night also featured a Greek cuisine stand.

AHI MARKS 42ND ANNIVERSARY OF TURKISH INVASION OF CYPRUS WITH CONGRESSIONAL BRIEFING

Ambassador Leonidas Pantelides.

AHI marked the 42nd anniversary of Turkey's illegal invasion of the Republic of Cyprus by hosting a congressional briefing to discuss the current state of affairs on the island at the Rayburn House Office Building on Capitol Hill, July 14, 2016. The briefing's forum allowed members of Congress to share their perspectives on the Cyprus issue and prospects for a solution amid the current settlement talks, which would be greatly aided with the removal of Turkish troops from the island. The legislators also called for continued U.S. engagement on Cyprus.

"For 42 years, the people of Cyprus have endured an illegal occupation and massive violations of human rights and fundamental freedoms by Turkey, a NATO ally of the United States," President Nick Larigakis, who moderated the briefing, said. "It is unfathomable that in 2016 a NATO member currently illegally occupies an EU-member nation, Cyprus. The briefing provided us with the viewpoints of Congress's leading authorities on foreign affairs, our leaders of the Hellenic Caucus and the legislators who are deeply concerned about the Cyprus issue. We thank them for their insights on the issue and their support for Cyprus."

The briefing, held in cooperation with the Congressional Caucus on Hellenic Issues, featured: U.S. Rep. Gus Bilirakis (R-FL), co-chair, Congressional Caucus on Hellenic Issues; U.S. Rep. Carolyn Maloney (D-NY), co-chair, Congressional Caucus on Hellenic Issues; U.S. Rep. Ileana Ros-Lehtinen (R-FL), former chairman, House Committee on Foreign Affairs; U.S. Rep. Chris Van Hollen (D-MD), ranking member, House Committee on Budget; U.S. Rep. John Sarbanes (D-MD), and U.S. Rep. Dina Titus (D-NV), as speakers. Also, Ambassador of the Republic of Cyprus to the U.S. Leonidas Pantelides and Ambassador of Greece to the U.S. Haris Lalacos as well as AHEPA Executive Director Basil Mossaidis, addressed the audience.

AHI BOARD MEMBER ADDRESSES CEREMONY MARKING CYPRUS INVASION ANNIVERSARY

AHI Board Member, and AHI Foundation Fellow, Dr. Van Coufoudakis addressed a commemorative ceremony for the 42nd anniversary of the Turkish invasion and continuing occupation of 37 percent of the Republic of Cyprus, July 18, 2016. The ceremony took place near the Ledra Palace crossing in Lefkosia.

In his remarks, Dr. Coufoudakis told the audience their presence at this symbolic moment of the Republic proved the Republic of Cyprus was not “defunct” as Turkey claims, but rather, democracy in Turkey is defunct given the aftermath of recent developments in that country. He also dismissed the notion of “lost opportunities” as he reviewed the history of UN-sponsored talks for a resolution of the “Cyprus problem.”

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

New York Times Publishes AHI Comment to Opinion Piece on Erdogan, ISIS

The New York Times published a submission from Nicholas G. Karambelas, Esq., AHI’s legal counsel and board member, to an opinion piece authored by Roger Cohen titled, “Erdogan in His Labyrinth,” June 30, 2016. Cohen opined Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan has played a “double game” when it comes to ISIS.

Karambelas wrote in his commentary, which the New York Times made as its “pick:” “The author misses an essential point as to why Erdogan played the "double game" with ISIS. Truck- loads of ISIS oil have passed over the Turkish border. These trucks did not "sneak" across the border but had to take main highways which are manned with Turkish border guards. The trucks were allowed to pass. Clearly, Turkish interests were receiving cash or other items of value in exchange for allowing the trucks to pass. The cash has stopped flowing so ISIS attacks Turkey. Turkey is unreliable. It regularly violates Greek airspace, a NATO ally and EU member state, with its US made military aircraft. These incursions are illegal under US law as US supplied military items can be used only for defensive purposes. Erdogan is also the main impediment to a Cyprus settlement. If the Turkish Cypriots were left alone, they could settle the issues with the Republic of Cyprus.”

New York Times Publishes AHI Comment to Editorial on Turkey’s Anti-Americanism

The New York Times published a submission from Nicholas G. Karambelas, Esq., AHI’s legal counsel and board member, to its editorial titled, “Turkey’s New Anti-Americanism,” August 4, 2016. The newspaper’s Editorial Board explored Turkey’s misguided aim to blame Washington for July’s failed coup attempt, which is centered around President Erdogan’s demand for Washington to extradite Fethullah Gulen, who Erdogan accuses as being the main culprit behind the failed coup.

Karambelas wrote—in part—in his commentary, which the New York Times made as one of its “picks:” Now the N.Y. Times and, for that matter, American officials are shocked (“shocked I say...”) at “Turkey’s New Anti-Americanism” which Erdogan reflects in his bizarre ravings about U.S. complicity in the coup. This is the opportunity for the U.S. to fundamentally re-access its relationship with and policies towards Turkey. Even if U.S. officials do not care about the abuses of human rights by Turkey, part of this assessment should be the fact that Turkey has enabled ISIS by allowing it to truck oil and other commodities through the territory of Turkey.

AHI Responds to Correct the Record on Turkey as Reliable Ally in Need

The Hill, a top U.S. political website vital to policy, politics, and election campaigns, published AHI’s response to a November 8, 2016 op-ed titled, “Our ally Turkey is in crisis and needs our support” by Lt. General Michael Flynn, who is now national security adviser to President Donald Trump.

In his letter, AHI President Nick Larigakis rebuts Lt. General Flynn’s claim that Turkey “...provides badly needed cooperation with U.S. military operations.” Larigakis demonstrates how Turkey has been an unreliable ally, citing Turkey’s refusal to allow the United States to use bases in Turkey to open a northern front against the Saddam Hussein dictatorship which led a former Bush Administration official to call Turkey’s negotiating tactics “extortion in the name of alliance.” Larigakis added, “Additionally, the United States’ successful prosecution of the war against Iraq without access from Turkey proved Turkey’s limited value as a strategic military resource in the region.” Larigakis also rebuts Lt. General Flynn’s assertion that Turkey is the

AHI IN THE NEWS

United States' strongest ally against ISIS and a source for stability in the region. Finally, Larigakis adds that Turkey lends to instability in the region with its egregious and frequent violations of Greece's sovereignty, its military occupation of the Republic of Cyprus, and bellicose threats against Cyprus as Cyprus explored for hydrocarbon reserves within its exclusive economic zone (EEZ) as Cyprus was in its right to do.

AHI Responds to Correct the Record on Greece, Clinton and "Macedonia"

The Hill, a top U.S. political website vital to policy, politics, and election campaigns, published AHI's response to a November 28, 2016 commentary titled, "When Greece and Hillary Clinton tried to erase Macedonia" by Bill Nicholov.

In her response, AHI Legislative Director Georgea Polizos rebuts Nicholov's commentary, stating it is "...rife with historical fallacies and comes across sounding more like a baseless, erroneous rant." Nicholov alleges that Hillary Clinton's campaign chair, John Podesta, made disparaging remarks about "Macedonia," citing WikiLeaks. Polizos corrects the record, stating, "Podesta merely stated that he continued to refer to Macedonia as FYROM which is in line with the U.N.-brokered Interim Accord, signed by the FYROM and Greece, in which both parties agreed to use the name FYROM until a mutually agreeable solution is found." Polizos also cites examples of how FYROM, under the administration of former Prime Minister Nikola Gruevski, made provocative claims and promoted irredentism toward its neighbor, Greece, which despite these provocations, has and continues to compromise greatly on the name-recognition issue.

AHI's Letter to 60 Minutes Refutes Importance of Turkey's Air Bases

AHI wrote to 60 Minutes following Correspondent Steve Kroft's November 20, 2016 report, "Turkey's disillusionment with the U.S.," which described Turkey's air bases, namely Incirlik, as having extreme importance to the United States and NATO for its staging areas and projection of power in the region.

AHI President Nick Larigakis' November 22 letter presents how the facts prove otherwise by citing how Turkey refused to allow the United States to use its bases to open a northern front against the Saddam Hussein dictatorship. "The United States' successful prosecution of the war against Iraq without access from Turkey proved Turkey's limited value as a strategic military resource," he wrote. Furthermore, Larigakis states that when Turkey does allow access, such as was the case with the fight against ISIS, it does so only after it stalls.

STATEMENTS AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

Resumption of United Airlines' Newark to Athens Seasonal Service Welcomed

In a May 31 statement, AHI welcomed United Airlines' resumption of summer seasonal nonstop service from Newark, N.J. to Athens, Greece. The service resumed May 25, 2016 and continued through to October 5, 2016.

"We sincerely thank United Airlines for resuming this service from a major metropolitan U.S. hub to Athens, Greece," President Nick Larigakis said. "We believe this service will provide a boost to tourism and a lift to the Greek economy during a critical time. Our hope is that United will grant strong consideration to making this service available year-round."

In January 2013, AHI and AHEPA representatives met with United Airlines to explore possibilities of establishing a direct route from a major United hub in the United States to Athens. The meeting came on the heels of a March 2012 joint letter the two organizations sent to United that expressed disappointment with the airline's November 2011 decision to terminate the Newark to Athens nonstop seasonal service.

In a separate initiative in April 2014, AHI, AHEPA, B'nai B'rith International, and the Conference of Presidents of Major American Jewish Organizations, wrote a letter to United Airlines requesting it give its full consideration to establishing a direct route from Washington, DC (IAD) to Athens, Greece that would continue to Tel Aviv, Israel.

Statement on 42nd Anniversary of Invasion of Cyprus

In a July 19 statement, AHI remembered the solemn 42nd anniversary of NATO member Turkey's brutal invasion of the Republic of Cyprus, a member of the European Union:

On July 20, 1974, Turkey invaded the Republic of Cyprus with the illegal use of U.S.-supplied arms and equipment in violation of the U.S. Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, the United Nations Charter, the NATO Treaty, and customary international law. Turkey occupied about four percent of Cyprus during the initial phase of its invasion. Turkish pilots flying American planes dropped American-made bombs, including napalm bombs, on Greek Cypriot communities.

Furthermore, on August 14, 1974, three weeks after the legitimate government of Cyprus was restored, Turkey launched the second phase of its invasion of Cyprus. As a result of its two-phase invasion of Cyprus, Turkey grabbed 37 percent of Cyprus's sovereign territory, killed innocent civilians, raped women ages 12 to 71, forced 170,000 Greek Cypriots from their homes and properties, and committed mass destruction of Cyprus' cultural and religious heritage, including an estimated 500 churches and religious sites belonging to Christian and Jewish communities.

NBC's Olympics Opening Ceremony Reporting Draws Outrage

In an August 9 statement, AHI conveyed its outrage at NBC as its commentators—Matt Lauer, Hoda Kotb and Meredith Vieira—linked Philip II of Macedonia and Alexander the Great to the nation of the Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia (FYROM) during its coverage of the Opening Ceremony of the 2016 Rio Olympic Games on August 5, 2016. Furthermore, AHI is disappointed that NBC chose to recognize FYROM as "Macedonia" during its coverage.

"We are incensed NBC would convey such historical misinformation to its worldwide audience," President Nick Larigakis said. "We are also disappointed that NBC would ignore the International Olympic Committee and reference FYROM as 'Macedonia' thus wading the network and the Olympic Games, which are meant to be apolitical, into geopolitics. The essence of the Olympic Spirit is for nations to come together devoid of political tension. In one fell swoop, NBC, a neutral third party, stoked tension by ignoring the IOC's proper recognition of FYROM thereby evoking a sensitive issue with, of all nations, Greece, which founded the Olympic Games."

Larigakis added that NBC's irresponsible actions only serve to embolden and advance FYROM's long-term policy of extreme nationalism and provocation against Greece.

AHI sent a letter date August 10 to NBCUniversal CEO Stephen Burke requesting the network to issue an on-air retraction because of the historical inaccuracies reported by its commentators during the Opening Ceremony. The letter also raised the geopolitical implications of NBC's reference of the Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia (FYROM) as "Macedonia" during its coverage.

Turkey’s Cancellation of Religious Service Commemorating Virgin Mary Condemned

AHI condemned a decision by the Turkish government to not allow services to take place at the historical Greek Orthodox monastery, Panayia Soumela, in Trabzon, Turkey on August 15, the feast day of the Virgin Mary. AHI also called on the State Department, the Obama Administration and Congress to continue to exert the pressure necessary to ensure that Turkey adheres to the rule of law and religious freedom.

“This is only the latest in a string of religious freedom violations for Turkey,” President Nick Larigakis said. “For years, the Turkish government has disregarded international treaties intended to safeguard religious freedom and persecuted their religious minorities, including the Ecumenical Patriarchate. Turkey has reneged on promises to reopen the illegally closed Halki seminary and escalated violations of religious freedom and human rights against its minority populations of which bodies such as the United States Commission on International Religious Freedom has noted.”

AHI Releases Updated Fact Sheet on Greece’s Contributions to NATO, Security

On September 28, AHI announced it released a 2016 update to its fact sheet that details Greece’s contributions to United States interests in the eastern Mediterranean and to NATO. The fact sheet is titled, “Greece: Valued Ally. Strategic Partner.” It is available for download at www.aheworld.org.

“When it comes down to it, Greece is a proven, reliable, and invaluable ally of the United States and an integral contributor to NATO. Greece takes its obligations to the Alliance seriously despite enduring two well-chronicled crises, economic and migratory,” President Nick Larigakis said. “Our fact sheet presents data, provides testimonials from prominent U.S. and NATO officials, and highlights examples of how Greece has contributed to United States security interests and international peacekeeping operations over many decades. We strongly encourage the community to utilize the fact sheet as an educational tool when speaking or meeting with policymakers and to share it widely.”

Milios Joins AHI Staff as Legislative Assistant, Special Projects Coordinator

AHI is pleased to announce the hire of Peter Milios as the Institute’s Special Projects Coordinator and Legislative Assistant.

“We are excited and fortunate to have Peter join our staff,” AHI President Nick Larigakis said. “In college, Peter served in many capacities that required a significant amount of responsibility and accountability. The legislative experience he gained through his internships in Florida, and his demonstrated passion for international affairs, will be a tremendous asset to our mission.”

Peter holds a Bachelor of Science in International Affairs and Political Science from Florida State University. He also obtained a minor in Middle Eastern Studies and a certificate in Emergency Management and Homeland Security.

“It is an honor to work for AHI,” Milios said. “The Institute had fostered the strong bonds between the United States and Greece and Cyprus, and works to promote Hellenism. I look forward to assisting in this capacity and giving back to the community, which has given me so much.”

American Jewish, Greek American Groups Welcome Second Trilateral Summit

The American Hellenic Institute (AHI), American Hellenic Educational Progressive Association (Order of AHEPA), B’nai B’rith International, and Conference of Presidents of Major American Jewish Organizations issued the following joint statement on Dec. 12, 2016:

“We welcome the second trilateral summit between Israel, Greece and Cyprus, held in Jerusalem on December 8, 2016. The second summit demonstrates a commitment between the three countries, which share democratic values and common interests, to strengthen their strategic partnership to provide stability to the eastern Mediterranean region. The announcement of a third summit to be held in Thessaloniki, Greece, is a further indication of the partnership’s development and significance.

“We are especially pleased the relationship is also progressing in areas of energy cooperation, as ministers from the three countries agreed to press for a natural gas pipeline from Israel to Europe. We also applaud the prompt emergency assistance provided by Greece and Cyprus to help Israel respond to the devastating wildfires in November and the announcement that the three countries will form a multinational regional rescue and emergency services force. Moreover, we continue to see growth in other critical sectors, such as tourism, that are a direct result of this strategic partnership.

“Finally, we take pride in providing broad diaspora support and encouragement for advancing the trilateral relationship’s advancement, and we look forward to continuing to do so in the future.”

In January 2016, the four organizations completed their second Leadership Mission to Israel, Cyprus and Greece. The groundbreaking inaugural mission was held in January 2014.

LETTERS TO GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS

President Obama's Greece Visit an Opportunity to Address Debt Relief, Support for Greece's Sovereignty in Aegean

AHI sent a letter to President Barack Obama, requesting him to address debt relief and to support Greece's sovereignty in the Aegean Sea as he prepared for his November 15 and 16, 2016 visit Greece.

In the October 27 letter, AHI President Nick Larigakis stated the Institute's appreciation for the Obama Administration's support of NATO ally Greece during its debt and refugee crises. Larigakis cited Treasury Secretary Jacob Lew's July visit to Greece where he made the case for debt relief, a policy shift by the Overseas Private Investment Corporation (OPIC), which was backed by AHI; and U.S. humanitarian aid. Larigakis added that despite these unprecedented two crises, Greece remains a steadfast contributor to the defense efforts of NATO and to the projection of U.S. strategic interests in the eastern Mediterranean via NSA Souda Bay, Crete.

AHIF Student Trip Alum Advises Trump on Foreign Policy

George Papadopoulos (r) meets with Nick Larigakis.

George Papadopoulos, a participant on the 2009 AHIF Student Foreign Policy Trip to Greece and Cyprus, served as a foreign policy adviser to President Donald Trump during Mr. Trump's presidential campaign. Papadopoulos, an international energy consultant, has been a researcher at the Hudson Institute before joining the London Center of International Law Practice. He also advised former Presidential Candidate Dr. Ben Carson.

Papadopoulos visited the Hellenic House on April 1 and met with AHI President Nick Larigakis and Legislative Director Georgea Polizos and received an up-to-date briefing on developments in the southeast Mediterranean.

"Southeastern Europe and the eastern Mediterranean combine to form an important geopolitical region to the United States," Papadopoulos said. "The strong, bilateral relationships that the United States has with Greece and Cyprus has only contributed to regional stability and the promotion of security and U.S. interests."

"We are proud to see all of our Study Abroad alumni and former interns take significant steps and succeed in their respective careers," Larigakis said. "Overall, it speaks to the quality and talent of students in the Greek American community. George is our most recent example of this success story, and we wish him the best going forward."

The American Hellenic Institute Foundation (AHIF) Foreign Policy Trip to Greece and Cyprus completed its eighth year as ten students from across the United States participated in the two-week program held June 17 to July 1, 2016.

The student participants were: Allie Martin, a sophomore at Boston University in the College of Arts and Sciences; Anastasia Kourtis, who graduated magna cum laude from Boston University in May 2015 with a B.A. in Classical Studies and Anthropology and a minor in Modern Greek; Anastasia Matiatos, an Honors student at the University of Arizona who is pursuing a double major in Philosophy, Politics, Economics, and Law and Fine Arts with minors in Classics and Spanish; Arthur Dedoulis, a sophomore at the Catholic University of America pursuing a bachelor's degree in Accounting from the Busch School of Business and Economics; Eleni M. During the program, the students received firsthand experience about the foreign policy issues affecting Greece and Cyprus, their relations with the U.S., and the interests of the U.S. in the region. Meetings or briefings were held with American embassies, officials from various ministries, including foreign affairs; parliament members, religious leaders, think-tank organizations, and members of academia and the private sector of both countries. In Greece, the students toured military facilities at Naval Support Activity (NSA) Souda Bay, Crete, and provided oral testimony to the Hellenic Parliament's Special Permanent Committee on Greeks Abroad about their experiences on the trip. In Cyprus, the group visited the Turkish-occupied area.

"The trip provided for an eighth-straight year a wonderful opportunity to lead an exceptional group of students to Cyprus and Greece," President Nick Larigakis said. "It was rewarding to see them gain firsthand experience about the foreign policy issues that concern U.S. relations with Greece and Cyprus. The AHI Foundation looks forward to offering this program annually as support for it has grown and student interest remains at significant levels since the program's inception."

"The most memorable experience would have to be the visit to the occupied area of Cyprus," Allie Martin, a participant on the trip, said. "It is the best example of something I never would've seen if it weren't for this trip. It's one thing to sit at a table with a government official and have them tell you what goes on in the occupied area. It is a completely different thing to go there and see the abandoned cities and desecrated churches yourself. It wasn't until that visit that I truly started to care about issues I previously thought unimportant."

Added Matt Kokkinos, "The opportunity to attend the AHIF Foreign Policy Trip to Greece and Cyprus is one which I feel so fortunate to have been given. Being able to meet, speak with, and question officials of the Cypriot, Greek, and American governments is an experience which is not available to so many individuals—the access to such senior officials was simply unparalleled—and having partaken in this program has given me knowledge and information regarding a variety of issues facing Cyprus, Greece, and the Cypriot and Greek American communities, as well as the U.S. and the American community at large."

The American Hellenic Institute Foundation (AHIF) hosted its Fifteenth Annual Conference on the Future of Hellenism in America, keeping the discussion of the promotion and preservation of Hellenism at the forefront of the community. This year's conference was held in Elizabeth, N.J., at the Renaissance Newark Airport Hotel, Nov. 18-19, 2016.

Featuring nearly 20 prominent speakers from across the country, conference presentations analyzed key issues including the future of Greek American organizations, the political process and lobbying, religious and ethnic identity, promoting Hellenic values through business, Greek education, and perspectives from young Greek Americans. Speakers also identified how Hellenism could be promoted in the future through these various channels.

AHIF held a dinner on the eve of the conference, November 18. AHI President Nick Larigakis officially opened the conference and welcome remarks followed from Conference Chairman Dr. Zenon Christodoulou and greetings from AHI Foundation President Dr. Spiro Spireas. "We sincerely appreciate the support from our many generous sponsors," Larigakis said. "Without their support, the Conference on Hellenism would not be the successful event that it was."

The conference was organized into five panels: Greek Education in America, The Greek American Community and the Political Process, Current Perspective on Current Challenges, The Changing Nature of the Greek American Community, and Looking to the Next Generation of Greek Americans. The conference's opening keynote speaker, Professor Dan Georgakas, director of Greek American Studies, Center for Byzantine and Modern Greek Studies, Queens College, CUNY, presented on the theme, "The Now and Future of Greek America" Dr. Van Coufoudakis, former dean, professor emeritus, Indiana University-Purdue University College of Arts and Science, spoke on the theme "Keeping Hellenism Alive in 21st Century America: Challenges, Opportunities, and Threats" as the conference's luncheon keynote speaker.

Former AHI Foundation Participant Details Expedition of Cyprus

Alexi Antoniou, a participant on the 2011 AHI Foundation Study Abroad program, launched a blog, "Circumventing Cyprus" that detailed his expedition around the entire island of Cyprus—over 400 miles in 60 days—to gather stories, pictures, and information about what unites this divided island. He was joined by his sister, Anna Antoniou, and cousin, Vasili Sotiropoulos. The group received a National Geographic Society Young Explorers grant and raised more than $6,000 from a crowdsourcing campaign.

"We are proud to see all of our Study Abroad alumni continue to take significant interest in the countries they visited following their time in the program," President Nick Larigakis said. "Overall, it speaks to the quality and talent of students in the Greek American community. Alexi is our most recent example of this success story, and we wish him the best going forward."

AHI mourned the passing of Dr. John Brademas, former United States representative from Indiana, President Emeritus of New York University, and longstanding AHI member. He passed away July 11, 2016. He was 89.

"We mourn greatly the passing of Dr. John Brademas," AHI Founder Gene Rossides said. "Dr. Brademas exemplified Hellenic ideals to the fullest extent.

He excelled as a public servant, valued the importance of education and the arts, and was a true champion of the Rule of Law. These were values instilled in him as the son of Greek immigrants. Without John's Capitol Hill acumen, and the respect he garnered during his service and a leader in Congress, the community's effort to impose an arms embargo on Turkey, following Turkey's illegal invasion and occupation of the Republic of Cyprus, would not have been a success. We will forever be grateful for his staunch and unwavering support for the Greek American community's policy issues."

"Dr. Brademas will always be remembered fondly by the American Hellenic Institute and its members for his devotion to AHI, the Rule of Law, and to Hellenism for which we are deeply grateful and from which we all benefited," AHI President Nick Larigakis said. "Our deepest sympathies and condolences are with his family. May his memory be eternal."

Dr. Brademas, who was the first American-born Hellene elected to Congress, was a recipient of the Hellenic Heritage National Public Service Award. The former Majority Whip also keynoted and addressed several AHI forums, conferences, and events.

dates, were for "low-income countries and those in Africa and Asia in particular." For nearly two years, AHI pressed Obama Administration officials and members of Congress on the fact that precedent existed for OPIC to operate its programs in EU countries when economic conditions and policy reasons support the need. AHI cited OPIC's work with Portugal and Malta along with Northern Ireland and other central European countries.

"OPIC's policy shift sends a strong message of support from the United States to Greece," AHI President Nick Larigakis said. "We sincerely thank the administration, which has had high-level engagement on Greece's economic crisis, for clearly stating Greece's eligibility for assistance from OPIC. We are also deeply grateful to Congresswoman Maloney, whose diligence and steadfast commitment to this issue contributed to this policy success."

Background

In April 2015, AHI wrote to OPIC, an "independent" government agency that provides financial products, such as loans or guaranties; or support for investment funds that help American businesses expand into foreign markets, requesting OPIC's support and assistance for Greece with its economic crisis by engaging in Greece where OPIC has been mostly inactive.

Subsequently, President Larigakis and AHI officials met with three OPIC officials and the staff of the Hellenic Caucus Co-Chairs. In addition, AHI held a November 2015 forum, "Greece Moving Forward," that included discussion of OPIC by Congresswoman Maloney.

AHI also raised OPIC at a roundtable discussion with White House officials held in August 2015. Following the meeting, Hellenic Caucus Co-Chairs Congresswoman Maloney and Congressman Gus Bilirakis (FL-12) released a co-authored letter to OPIC President Littlefield requesting the agency be allowed to operate in Greece.
